LABOR DISSATISFIED WITH MODIFIED TEMPORARY CODES

Object to 40-Hour Week
Which Is Being Approved

STATE THEIR REASONS

Green Incident Believed To Have Question To Front

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16.—Organized labor has notified National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson that labor is dissatisfied with modifications of Presidential temporary codes now being approved with great rapidity, it was disclosed today. The chief objection is the great majority of the modifications approved by Johnson provide for a 40 hour week. This compares with the 35-hour week for industrial workers and 40 hours for office workers, proposed by the President.

"We have been assured by the administration that approval of the 40-hour week in the blanket codes is no criterion for approval of permanent codes," said John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. "The question is bound to come to a head soon. Labor cannot accept the 40-hour week. If we do, there will be still five to six million unemployed with the Recovery Act not fully functioning."

The entire labor situation came to the fore as a result of the refusal of steel magnates to discuss code proposals with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and the labor advisory representative in the steel codes, and renewed labor troubles in many sections.

While Johnson minimized the Green incident, the Green incident, the Federation regarded it as an affront to the government since he went to the steel conferences as a government representative. The incident was accepted as a further indication that the steel and many other big industries are ready to fight to the limit to prevent unionization.

Kidnappers Who Exacted Factor Funds Still at Large

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(INS)—Two kidnappers who exacted a new ransom payment from John "Jake the Barber" Factor, wealthy stock promoter, were still at large today after eluding a fantastic trap set by 250 police, Federal agents and deputy sheriffs.

Twenty picked detectives and Federal agents were assigned to guard Factor, his wife and two children from possible retaliation by the kidnappers. Authorities feared the gangsters might strike back at Factor because he cooperated with police and government operatives.

As the search for the two extortionists continued today, Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker announced that the fugitives were members of the gang headed by Roger Touhy, now under arrest with three companions for the kidnapping of William Kamm, Jr., millionaire St. Paul brewer.

CTBA'S GOVERNMENT PRESSES FORWARD

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 16.—Successfully handling an attempted revolt in Eastern Cuba, the new government of President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes today pressed forward with an eight-point program of constitutional reform for a new Cuba. With peace prevailing through the Republic after the pillaging and bloodshed which accompanied the overthrow of the Machado regime, the new Republic tackled problems aided by United States Ambassador Sumner Welles. The new program was revealed exclusively to I. N. S. by Dorson de la Torre, former President of the League of Nations Assembly and former Cuban Ambassador to Washington. He declared the proposed reform will give the Cuban people greater constitutional liberties than are enjoyed by any people on the earth.

ARE BOYS BETTER OR IS BETTER WORSE?

HARRISBURG, Aug. 16.—"Playing hooky" from school is not nearly so popular with the younger element today as it was ten years ago.

Attendance records released by the Department of Public Instruction show that in 1923 a total of 151,620 different public school pupils were given black marks for being unlawfully absent from one or more sessions of school. But through energetic efforts of home and school visitors (truants officers passed out of the Pennsylvania school picture some years ago) the number of truants was reduced by 1932 to 68,407. This represents a decrease of 45.1 per cent. Also, the number of half days of truancy has decreased in the ten-year period from more than half a million to approximately 300,000, or a decrease of 53 per cent. Evidently the boys like school much better these days, or fishing isn't as good as it used to be.

STATE POLICE ARREST TWO YOUTHS FOR THEFT

Robbery and Petty Thievery
Brought to Light by Officers

CONFESSIONS SIGNED

Robbery and petty thievery of the most contemptible type was brought to light yesterday by State Police and other officers with the arrest of two more Bucks county youths, members of a gang of "drug store" cow boys who have been operating in central Bucks county for a year.

Yesterday's arrests, police say, put a crimp in the activities of the gang for six of its members are now in the Bucks County Prison awaiting sentence in criminal court. All have given the State Police confessions and will enter pleas of guilty.

Arrests made yesterday by Private George Sauer, of the Doylestown substation of State Police and Constable A. R. Atkinson, of Doylestown, were as follows:

Joshua Bowen, 24, of Perkasmere R. D. 2, and Stanley Landenslager, 23, of Perkasmere R. D. 2. They will be given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace W. Carlisle Hobensack on charges of felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Other youths arrested some time ago by the same officers included Theodore Hutchins, Jr., Norman Beisel, William Bernweiler and Norman Myers, all of the Dublin section.

Chief of Police James J. Welsh, of Doylestown, worked in conjunction with the other officers in the questioning of Myers and Hutchins in connection with a number of thefts in Doylestown, which led to a confession from both of the accused.

At the Doylestown State Police barracks yesterday, Bowen and Landenslager signed written confessions.

Bowen and Landenslager admitted breaking into an unoccupied house owned by Alexander Smith, Dublin, last February. Together with Hutchins, they stole a number of valuable tools, including a drill frame, an electric motor and wire. The motor was sold in Philadelphia. The police located the drill press and other stolen loot in Bowen's garage. Two circular saws were also confiscated by the police.

From information received from Claude Yerkes, of Apple Butter Road, Dublin, concerning thefts at his place some time ago, police connected Hutchins, Landenslager and Bowen with the crime. They admitted stealing the circular saws from him. Hutchins knew where Yerkes kept the saws because he once worked for him on his farm.

During the questioning by police, it was brought out that Myers, Bowen, Hutchins and Landenslager stole a large number of articles from automobiles parked around Grange Hall, near Dublin. These articles included flash lights, tobacco pouches and a number of other articles. They also stole gasoline from a steam roller at Applebushville.

Myers and Hutchins also confessed that several months ago they stole a number of articles from automobiles parked near the Doylestown Bazaar. The loot included neckties, blankets, flashlights, tools and numerous other articles reported to him as being stolen, and when the Chief checked up with the State Police and Constable Atkinson yesterday, the articles were identical the same as Myers and Hutchins admitted stealing.

Claude Whitmas, of Dublin, was also questioned by the police but was released later. Whitmas admitted that he and Hutchins entered a pool room of Alton Trapp, Dublin, where Hutchins was once employed as a pin boy. Hutchins would leave the window open at night when he quit work so that it would be easy to gain an entrance.

TO SUBSTITUTE BUSES, MORRISVILLE TROLLEYS

Council Gives Sanction at Its Meeting Held Last Night

TO DISBAND COMPANY

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 16.—Borough Council last night gave its approval for the substitution of buses for trolleys between here and Trenton and authorized a committee of its members to negotiate further with officials of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Street Railway Company to bring the change about.

The committee will arrange details of the substitution as it affects bus schedules, routes and seek assurance that the change will mean removal of overhead wires and poles from the streets and improvement of the present roadways over which the trolleys operate.

Completion of these arrangements, which at present indicate operation of buses into Morrisville over the Calhoun Street Bridge and back to Trenton via the lower bridge, will pave the way for presentation of the change by railway officials to the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission for its sanction.

It is also proposed to substitute bus service for the present trolley route up the river to Yardley. Sanction of the substitution by the State Commission, M. J. Hill, general manager of the trolley company, said, will mean the present railway company would disband.

Council also received a report from W. DeWitt Vosbury, engineer employed to make a survey of the filtration plant, on improvements necessary to place the plant in first-class condition. The engineer presented three proposals, one involving an expenditure of $83,000. The other two cited improvements to cost $17,000 and $50,000.

Council took the report under advisement and will discuss at a special meeting next week plans to present one of the proposals to the voters for ratification. It is planned to petition the Federal Government for funds to carry out one of the three projects.

HILLTOWN TAXPAYERS AGREE TO GIVE LAND

Petition Commissioners to Aid
Road Construction
Project

SOMETHING UNUSUAL

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 16.—Bucks County Commissioners in session yesterday had something new before them. They received a petition from a group of Hilltown township taxpayers who agreed to donate their land for road construction purposes without seeking a cent of damages.

The petition will likely be given consideration for the condition is usually reversed, said Commissioners' Clerk Ernest Harvey, in commenting on the unusual paper. It is usually the custom for property owners to seek damages when a road is reconstructed.

The petition, signed by twenty-five Hilltown residents along a route known as the "Gersville survey" of the Bethlehem pike, agrees to allow the highway the right of way without land damages to Bucks county or the state.

The "Gersville survey" was made several years ago by the State Highway Department when the state started to figure on the reconstruction and widening of the Bethlehem pike between Montgomeryville and Quakertown. The "Gersville survey" from Line Lexington to Sellersville, if adopted by the state and county, would mean a "short cut" and a complete straightening out of the highway along a different road bed than the present Bethlehem pike.

The petitioners, hearing that the State Highway Department is making another survey along the present Bethlehem pike route, the property owners along the "Gersville survey" got busy a week ago and secured all but two of the property owners along the proposed survey to sign up and make an offer of donating the right of way.

What result this petition will have on the plans of the State Highway Department and the County of Bucks in selecting a route for the reconstruction work could not be learned this morning, but it was rumored that a similar petition will be filed in a few days by property owners living along the present Bethlehem pike route, but whether they will offer their land to the county and state, without damages, remains to be seen.

State Highway officials said today that the petition of the residents along the "Gersville route" is certainly worthy of consideration.

ARCHITECTS VISIT PENN'S ESTATE AND VIEW FOUNDATIONS

Historical Committee of Phila.
Chapter of American Institute

PRESERVATION ADVICE

Metal, Unearthed, Believed To
Be Remains of Leaden
Water Tank

The Historical Committee of the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, of which Horace Wells Sellers is chairman, visited the Manor Estate of William Penn near Tullytown yesterday at the request of the Pennsylvania State Historical Commission. The architects were asked to examine the foundation walls recently uncovered, and to advise regarding their protection and preservation.

This discovery of the heavy stones of the southeastern corner foundations follows upon the previous uncovering of the garden wall which led from the mansion down to the river. A great accumulation of the black-headed brick of which the house was constructed has also been dug up, along with some metal, believed to be the remains of a leaden tank for catching rain, and some flat stones which formed the roof covering.

Excavations were undertaken on the ancient site by the Pennsylvania State Historical Commission, which has charge of the Pennsbury Memorial. This State park of eight acres was presented to the Commonwealth last autumn by the Warner Company, whose members are descendants of old friends and companions of William Penn.

Donald A. Cadzow, an expert archaeologist, has been retained by the State Historical Commission and is in charge of the excavations. The Pennsbury committee of the commission, directing the work, consists of Charles Henry Moon, of Woodbourne, Bucks County, chairman; Dr. Myers, secretary of the commission, and Dr. James N. Rule, State superintendent of public instruction and chairman of the commission.

Two thousand dollars have been allotted to this park by the commission, and additional funds have been contributed by members of the Welcome Society, consisting of descendants of William Penn's fellow-passengers on the ship Welcome when he first came to America.

A manuscript in Penn's own handwriting records his statement that he spent between $5,000 and $7,000 on his country home at Pennsbury Manor. Other Penn documents tell of his fondness for this country home and of the trees, shrubs and flowers he planted there—all to flourish anew at the Pennsbury Memorial when the gardening plans now in view are carried out.

ELECTRIFYING FARMS

The introduction of labor-saving machinery into any line of industry has come to be looked upon with misgivings because of the possible effects in throwing men out of employment.

The growing electrification of farms and rural communities, therefore, may not be viewed with the same degree of approval which would have been the case a few years ago. The situation, however, must be faced as a fact.

Emphasis is given this development by the recent awarding to the Alabama Power company, by the Edison Electric Institute, of the Thomas W. Martin trophy for leadership in the United States in 1932 in rural electrification. The Alabama company conducted a special campaign in co-operation with the state agricultural experiment station, the national committee on the relation of electricity to agriculture and the Alabama farm bureau.

Rural lines first were constructed as a field laboratory. It did not require long for farmers to see the benefits they could derive from the use of electricity. The power company now serves 64 out of the 67 counties in the state and has 9,159 rural customers. The fact that this has been done in what appeared to be in an uninviting field makes the achievement all the more remarkable. Alabama ranks 45th among the states in the average income per farm. This fact, however, did not prevent farmers from buying current and electric appliances when they saw that by doing this they could not only increase the comforts of rural life but also add to their incomes.

What will be the effect upon the rural labor market of the electrification of farms is a question of current interest. The natural result will be to reduce the need of manpower and to increase production. Neither of these results is desirable at present when the national government is concentrating its efforts on increasing employment and cutting down production. There is another aspect of the situation, however, which must not be lost sight of. Continued rural electrification will mean the construction of thousands of miles of electric lines, the building of numerous additional power stations and increasing the output of factories manufacturing electric appliances and machinery for use on farms as well as that of those producing materials for use in extending the distribution of power. New jobs will be created throughout a large section of industry.

That these advantages may offset the disadvantages of increased use of electricity on farms seems a reasonable conclusion.

But whatever may be the results, there appears to be no doubt that rural electrification will continue at an increasing rate. Farmers are realizing its steadily growing numbers its value to themselves and it is proving a highly promising field for power companies and the makers of electrical equipment. Such a combination of circumstances is assurance that there will be no let-up in the movement. With both seller and buyer prospering, no other conclusion is possible.

Another good thing about radio concerts is the lack of encores.

A smart man admits his mistakes. Some time ago, Bill Powell refused to play a political boss in "The Dark Horse."

Warren William took the part and it made him a star. Now Bill has consented to play a similar role in "The Gentleman from San Francisco."

This picture will be Powell's next after he finishes Philo Vance in "The Kennel Murder Case." It will show him as the power behind the throne in the political affairs of a modern city—not, however, our northern neighbor.

There's still no getting Bill to talk over his marital troubles with Carole Lombard. After a few quiet days at Arrowhead Hot Springs, he returned to Hollywood and plunged into work.

Meanwhile, Carole continues to establish residence in Nevada. Mrs. Zeppo Marx has just returned from there (her trip had no legal motive) and reports that Carole is looking swell.

The wags have been busy with Eddie Sutherland since his fourth marriage went on the rocks.

"Who's next, Eddie?" chided one the other day.

Sutherland shook his head, flipped: "No more. I've decided to go to Europe every Summer instead. It's cheaper."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE:

After "The Late Christopher Bean," you'll not be seeing Marie Dressler on the screen for quite a while. Even the three hours a day on the set are too much for the grand old trouper. She's going to take an extended vacation—three or four months. For the time being at least, she will remain in Hollywood or close by. "I'm too tired to think of plans," she says.

It's a good old motto: "To them that hath." Several nights ago, Bill Candy, local socialite and owner of yachts and things, was dancing in the Coconut Grove. A scout from the Fox studio spotted him, asked him to make a screen test. Now he's working in a picture and playing, of all things, a bartender.

Grooming is not good enough for Russ Columbo. The singing star is aiming at grand opera. Pietro Chiani is helping develop his voice.

Greta Garbo, who hates changes, must get used to a new maid. Her old one, the dusky Alma, has had to retire on account of ill health.

Ben Lyon writes from London that he has just received a British pilot's license—making him the only Hollywood actor to hold both an American and a British certificate.

Odd coincidence, Johnny Weissmuller has a religious medal with the Saint Gaudens on it. He carried it before he met Lupe Velez.

And incidentally, Johnny says his religion would not prevent a marriage with the Mexican star. He and Bobbie Armat were not married by the church.

Evelyn Venable, daughter of a Cincinnati professor and leading woman to Walter Hampden before Paramount signed her up, wouldn't have a good time on a weiner roast.

She's a vegetarian. . . . Hard luck pursues Fox stars. To the list of injured in the last few weeks is added Miami Jordan. She stepped off the curb in Hollywood and a squash-and-run driver ran over her foot, breaking the middle toe.

Little Jane Harding, daughter of Ann, is minus her tonsils. Ann was with her at the hospital and, though considerably shaken, came to the studio later and made a test. . . . And the phony travel writers can look out. W. S. Van Dyke is to write a book, "Debunking Adventure."

DID YOU KNOW—

That Ralph Morgan recently lost a $5 gold piece he had carried as a good luck charm for two years and, more recently, received it in change at a Los Angeles department store?

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

"You don't mean you're going to leave us in the lurch?" Wingate asked, in a hurt voice. "I can't believe you'd do a thing like that."

"I'm not leaving you in the lurch," Loni told him plainly. "Mr. Gerstenfeld admits I'm a terrific gamble and there's no certainty about my future success. You gentlemen—your whole lives are wrapped up in pictures. With me, it's different. I only want one thing in life. I want to be happy. The pictures demand too much of me. There are ten thousand other girls waiting to step into my shoes. Let them have the chance. I've never had a chance for happiness in my whole life until now—and I'm going to take it."

By the time she had finished speaking, the power of Gerstenfeld's eyes had forced her, at last, to look straight at him.

She was iron-bound in her determination to refuse anything he might demand. He held no authority of reward or punishment over her.

Fame, money, ambition were all obliterated in the warm glow that filled her whole being. It was as though she stood on the threshold of a new life pulsating with unearthly joy. Nevertheless, there existed somewhere in her a little area of fear, a black spot of foreboding that might spread and tarnish the glistening ecstasy of her whole beautiful dream.

"When did you fall in love?" demanded Gerstenfeld.

His question was like a sharp knife pressing against her white flesh. The smile on Loni's lips did not diminish, although something of its warmth escaped.

"Last night."

"Who's the man?"

"It's a private and personal matter. Must I tell?"

She looked away from him, but her gaze was forced to return to his dark eyes as the steel is drawn to the magnet.

Loni resisted looking at those eyes for the unaccountable reason they held a force that chilled her inner warmth. As long as she did not look at Gerstenfeld, she felt, everything would be all right—she could do as she pleased.

Somewhere within him lived a power dangerous to the free determination of her own destiny. . . .

"I must insist on knowing who the man is," said Gerstenfeld evenly.

Wingate thrust his hands into his pockets and walked to a window. His artistic sense of proportion told him he was entirely superfluous at the moment. Loni had been clutching a wisp of handkerchief in her palm. A tremor of childish helplessness came over her. The hand relaxed and the flake of chiffon fluttered to the floor.

"His name is Lucky Cavanaugh," she said, oddly surprised at her difficulty in giving it out. "Please believe me, this is no whim. It is—it is my life."

For just a moment, Gerstenfeld's lids closed over his burning eyes and then opened again. In the instant Loni tore her gaze away.

Ned Wingate, standing by the window, suddenly became motionless as he saw the portrait of a man.

Loni waited for somebody to say something. She did not know whether she had silenced them completely or whether they were merely gathering strength to attack her decision. In the fragment of a second she thought she detected something like pity in Gerstenfeld's eyes.

"Lucky Cavanaugh is a wonderful man," she said as if to explain everything.

Gerstenfeld turned toward Win-

The man opened the paper and placed it in Loni's white outstretched hands.

gate with a dry cough in his throat.

"Get that newspaper out of my overcoat in the hall," he said.

"Newspaper? What's a newspaper got to do with this?" asked Loni quickly.

"It has everything to do with it," Miss Loneska, Gerstenfeld said in a voice utterly lifeless. "A woman picture star is a fool to fall actually in love. We always make a mistake when we surrender our happiness to other people. We are not like other people—the public. As long as love with us is an emotionless recreation it does no harm. If we take it too seriously it ruins us."

"I don't know what you're talking about," said Loni, suddenly white and ghostly.

Wingate had returned to the room with the folded newspaper in his hand, his clown mouth was moving with a silent flexible smile.

"Show it to her," said Gerstenfeld.

The man opened the paper and placed it in Loni's white outstretched hands.

LUCKY CAVANAUGH
HELD FOR MURDER

The headline was a black rush of letters stampeding across the entire top of the front page.

No sound broke from her lips in this devastating instant. She stood up, gripping the newspaper in her two hands, her eyes trying to drink in the sub-heading.

Gerstenfeld watched her without a word or emotion.

"Rotten break!" said Wingate with a shade of casual sympathy. "It looks like Cavanaugh quarreled with his sweetheart and shot her dead in his own apartment. At any rate, they've got the girl's body and he's locked up. If you ask me, I'll say it's a lucky thing it was another girl instead of you that got that bullet in her heart last night. We'll be lucky if we can keep your name out of this mess."

A strength apparently from outside her body came to Loni's aid and held her steady and erect while she read the brief and hurried printed account.

She remained standing, filled with emptiness; she felt a hollow weakness in her joints. Then she sensed nothing at all and, as she started to topple, Wingate caught her in his long arms and held her up like a limp child. . . .

The blackness surrounding Loni melted and turned to light.

With returning consciousness came a clarity of intelligence as bright and definite as sunlight. She knew she had fainted, and why.

Wingate had placed her upon a sofa and was rubbing her wrists with a handkerchief which he dipped into a glass of water. At the bottom of the sofa stood Gerstenfeld watching, it seemed, for her to open her eyes so he could begin talking.

As her physical strength came back she sat up.

"Now that you've had that over with," said Gerstenfeld without a trace of sympathy, "we'll get back to business. Are you capable of listening to me?"

"I'm going to get to Lucky just as soon as I can," said Loni.

She sat on the edge of the sofa, arched her spine inward and threw her head backward as she breathed in a deep draught of air. The color began coming back to her cheeks.

"Forgive me for fainting, gentlemen. Will you go with me, Ned? Will you take me to where he is locked up?"

Wingate glanced at his superior. Gerstenfeld shook his head.

NAMES

you should know

YOU like to know names that everybody knows — name of the man who tied lightning to a kite; name of the man who watched a teakettle and went out and made an engine. Just knowing such names gives you pleasure.

Yet there are names that thousands of people know that can give you much more pleasure in a much more personal way. Names that stand for the best things to eat, to wear, to sleep on. Names, that if connected with the salad dressing, hat, fountain pen you select—or any other desirable thing—mean it is most desirable. Names written large in ADVERSESMENTS.

Advertisements tell why those are wise names for you to know. Why such names greet you in the best grocery, department and hardware stores. Why those names are in the buying vocabulary of thousands . . . are believed in by thousands . . . justify belief!

Read the advertisements. Don't ask vaguely in a store for "cold cream," "a skillet," "a vacuum cleaner." Ask for So-and-So's Cold Cream, So-and-So's Skillet, So-and-So's Vacuum Cleaner. Use the names, you have learned through advertisements, that stand for the product that means most to you and most to everybody.

It pays to read all advertisements in this paper

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

NATIVE produce is supplying the home market but in addition each district must look to other localities for supplementary foods. Chief in the week's markets are tomatoes, green beans, carrots, and beets. Sweet potatoes are beginning to be plentiful. Sweet corn is unusually fine and this is the season to enjoy it to the utmost. It is the height of the summer fruit season with new apples, peaches, pears, plums, and seedless grapes all available.

With olive oil, salad dressing and peanut butter to choose from, there is no excuse for not enjoying summer salads with a variety of dressings.

SHUTOUTS FEATURE LOWER END GAMES

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE

Last Night's Results

HULMEVILLE, 3; PARKLAND, 0
BRISTOL A. A., 3; I. O. O. F., 0

Shutouts featured the Lower Bucks County League games played last night. On Sullivan's field, Bristol A. A. blanked the Odd Fellows, 3-0, and at Parkland, Hulmeville A. A. white-washed the Parkland nine by the same score.

By virtue of its victory Hulmeville A. A. clinched the second half of the race and earned the right to meet the Hibernians in the playoff series. It was the 12th straight win for Hulmeville and their 13th in fourteen starts.

The shutout victory was the seventh consecutive game in which the opponents failed to score on the Hulmeville team and was the fourth straight shutout win for Howard Black and his sixth straight victory. In the last six games the opponents of the Hulmeville team have made a total of but seven safe blows.

Hulmeville took the lead early in the fracas by scoring a run in the first inning when Bilger, Watson and Black touched Holland for hits. The final two runs came in the fifth on a hit by Hemp, sacrifices by Rockhill and Leigh and a fielder's choice on Bilger's ground ball.

"Bill" Stackhouse continued his fine playing for the winners by socking a double in his only official appearance at the plate. He walked on two other occasions.

On Thursday night, the Hibernians, first half champs, will be the guest of the Hulmeville team on the Hulmeville field in a regular scheduled game.

If given the right support, "Doc" Diehm, lanky twirler of the Bristol A. A. team, would beat most of the clubs in the Lower Bucks County League. This was proven last night when "Doc" beat the Odd Fellows and allowed but three hits. The A. A. team fielded errorless behind Diehm for the first time since the Doctor put in his appearance in the A's roster.

Two of the three hits made off Diehm were scratch blows. Purcell made the only clean bingle. Ashby beat out a hit to start the second but from then on the only Odd Fellows player to reach first was Praul and that was because Mellor interfered with his bat.

Massilla made the only A. A. hit off Beck who was wild during his stay on the hill. In the first he walked McDaniels who stole second and third and scored on an overthrow.

To begin the second he walked Tomlinson. Tomlinson was sacrificed to second by Riola and scored on Massilla's hit. Still's error on Jones' roller allowed Massilla to score.

Kohler pitched the last three innings for the Oddies and did not let a runner reach first base.

BOWLING LEAGUE TO FORM MONDAY NIGHT

The Bristol Bowling Association will hold its first 1933-34 season's meeting at the Bristol Recreation Center in the sixth ward to prepare plans for the coming season on Monday evening.

The prospects of a bigger and better year for the Bristol League is very promising for many of the old timers have proclaimed their intentions of returning to face the maples at the end of the wooden ways. There are also quite a number of new fans moved into the vicinity of late and will no doubt appear on the scene to produce some real competition.

There will no doubt be an evenly matched eight-team league in action this year due to the combining of Cast-offs and No. 1 Fire Co., also the Harman and Amison teams as reported. This will make places for two new teams which are expected to enter and reported to be capable of making the best of them take notice.

It is expected that there will also be a new league formed to accommodate class B and C bowlers of which five teams have declared intentions of entering.

All persons who are interested in bowling are extended a cordial invitation to attend this meeting and any information desired will be gladly furnished by either the manager, Mr. J. Amison, or any officer of the association.

Meeting will be called at 8 p. m. and all members and persons who desire to become affiliated are urged to request to be on hand due to the large volume of business on hand to be transacted.

State Police Arrest Two Youths for Theft

On one occasion several years ago a slot machine containing $80 was stolen, and both youths confessed to the theft.

The theft of a shot bag filled with money at the home of Reuben Moyer, Dublin huckster, was also admitted by Bowen and Laudenslager. They forced open a window at night while Moyer and his family were away.

SPORT SHOTS by Maxwell Gordon

A GROUP of former baseball greats will be assembled next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on Sullivan's field to play a benefit game . . . the proceeds to go toward the uniform fund of the Legion Cadets.

Among the old timers to don baseball uniforms again will be Sam Pearson, Johnston Hetherington, Sam Deitrich, Danny McDevitt, Bud David, Elmer White, Jimmy Brady, Arthur Brooks and Ted Roper.

Earl Spangler will coach the old boys and we hear they are holding secret practice in order to be in good shape to dust off Johnny Mulholland's Bristol A. A. nine.

We understand that the Cadets will be at the field to give an exhibition drill by the newly-formed drill squad . . . Also the Bugle Corps in their new uniforms, to give the spectators an idea of what they will look like when they defend their state championship at the American Legion convention to be held in Philadelphia next week.

The game and the Cadets should furnish an interesting spectacle for those who witness the affair . . . So go out to Sullivan's field . . . enjoy the game and help a good cause.
